- Based on our experience, below is a list of the key challenges faced by companies during the development of job descriptions. We have listed against each of these challenges our value proposition which we offer to all our clients.

Key Issues	Indications	Value Proposition
Lack of Integration	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> JDs are not updated when the organization structure changes. Reporting lines reflected in the JDs are inconsistent with the organization structure. Some positions have no JD. The competencies reflected on the JD are not linked with the competency framework. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We carefully review the client's organization structure and competency framework. We develop a JD for each position in the structure. We ensure consistency of qualifications and skills in the JD with the associated competency framework.
Impractical Job Descriptions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> JDs were developed without the involvement of the job holders. The JDs were written having the jobholder in mind, not the job itself. JDs are not being shared with employees. JDs becoming outdated as not reviewed for few years. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We develop JDs based on a conducted Job Analysis and Job Benchmarking exercises. We identify gaps in positions and highlight them to clients. We develop a procedure for managing and updating JDs and provide suitable training to the client..
Various Inconsistencies	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Different JD templates being used in the company. JDs being written in different languages. JDs have inconsistent writing style. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We use a consistent template for all JDs while considering any followed standard (e.g. ISO). We develop JDs using a consistent writing style and in the languages agreed with the client.

We maintain an effective framework with which we have delivered a number of successful job descriptions development projects ...
